Not illustrated. 1855 Excerpt: .care has been taken in observing, reducing, and recording, and the same instruments have been used throughout, except that for the last six months of 1853, the observations of Capt. Cameron, RE., recorded at the Ordnance Map Office, Southampton, have been substituted, his own barometer having been out of order. The author having found that the mean temperature derived from the 9 A.m., 3 P.m., and 9 Pm. observations indiscriminately, agreed fairly, after the application of corrections for daily range with that deduced from mean of max.-f mean of min., . ., --a monthly correction used in the Greenwich observationshas discontinued the two later daily observations for the last three years, as mean results were all that he aimed at; and after having tested his results by various comparisons, he feels fully persuaded that the mean state of the atmosphere, as regards pressure, temperature, and moUtire, has now been determined for Southampton with such an approximate accuracy that for that end alone no further observations are required. The author then proceeds to comment on each of the five tables. Table I. contains the mean pressures for each month of the three years, --the maximum with the date of its occurrence, the minimum with the date of its occurrence, and the monthly range in separate columns. Table II. gives the mean temperature for each month from the 9 A.m. observations, --the mean of the maxima, the mean of the minima, the adopted mean (or calculated from both),...
