IGNORE THE MAN IN THE CHAIR TYPING

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 98 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.2in. I lost my cell phone and had to get a new one. This was bad because, one: I hate cell phones. Two: I hate cell phones. And Three: I secretly had hoped that the Mayans were right and by today I would be holding onto a rope waiting for the atmosphere to come back, so why would I even have to have a cell phone I wouldn't, except the Mayans were wrong. I'm still not over that. . . In my defense, I was born in 1957. In 1957 there were no cell phones. Hell my first memory of a phone was a party line. That's where you got to listen into other people's conversations as long as you could breathe quietly and not giggle. You could not put your phone in your pocket and if you tried to you would most likely get some strange looks. But all that did not bring my cell phone back so I went and got another. My son came to visit for the weekend so he was here to witness my triumph over Cell Phone technology. Well, he would have seen it had it happened. But instead I spent three hours trying to set it up, transfer my number, and then it all failed. I would like to take a second to comment about Mothers. Geeze. Sometimes they can be such smart alics. Not that mine is. No. So, anyway, my Mother says, did you read the owners Manual Mom, I said in my best talking to my mother voice, Cell phones dont have owner manuals. Dad, my son says, It does. Shhssh, I say too late. Well, Mom says very...
